

The following guide has been published by The Follower Shadow System to assist it's members and punters in general in not only understand Forecast betting, but also how to place the bets and profit.

Further information may be found with your specific bookmaker who will undoubtedly have guidance on placing these bets on their platform.

Placing Your Forecast Bet

Forecasts are accepted in all races of 3 or more actual runners and will be settled as a straight forecast (selections to finish 1st and 2nd in correct order) in accordance with the computer straight forecast dividend. If there are less than 3 actually running in a race then all forecasts for that race will be void.

In the event that there is only one finisher in a race and no Forecast dividend is returned, all Forecasts bets with the winning selection to finish first will be settled as WIN SP singles on the winning horse. All other forecast bets will be losing bets.

Forecast Bets are settled in accordance with the computer SP straight forecast returns. If for any reason a Forecast SP return is not given, bets will be made void.

Forecast Bets involving a non-runner will be made void. Bets involving two non-runners will also be made void.

Straight Forecast

Also known just as a 'forecast', the straight forecast asks you to predict who will come first and who will come second in a race (in that particular order). To place a forecast bet, firstly select the Horse we predict to finish 1st by clicking the adding to betslip as you would with any other horse, then select the Horse we predict to finish 2nd in the same way and you will notice the Forecast option will be added to your betslip.

Entering your betslip will display the order you have requested, enter the stake and confirm the bet as you would a single bet to place the forecast.

TIMEFORM TIP

3 Revolutionise (IRE) 7/5
(1) Marco Ghiani

REVOLUTIONISE has developed into a useful performer on the AW since last running on turf so is potentially well treated on this surface. Dazzling Dan has come down a long way in the weights and was left poorly placed on his return at Newmarket, so rates the main threat.

Reverse Forecast

A reverse forecast involves you predicting who will come first and second in a race (in any order). It costs twice your stake because you're effectively placing 2 straight forecast bets.

A reverse forecast bet can be placed by firstly selecting the Horse we predict to finish 1st by clicking the adding to betslip as you would with any other horse. Entering the stake (this will be doubled) and clicking 'Place Bet' (as well as 'Confirm Bet' if the option is selected) will place the reverse forecast bet.

The screenshot displays a betting interface for a race at 15:50 Yarmouth. The race details include a 'TIMEFORM TIP' for Revolutionise (IRE) with odds of 7/5. A table lists the horses and their details:

Draw	Horse	Recent Form	Jockey	Trainer	Age	Weight (OR)	Eq.	Previous Odds	Win
3 (1)	Revolutionise	2-12188	Marco Ghiani	Marco Ghiani (3)	5	9-2 (82)	t	13/8 + 6/4	7/5
2 (2)	Dazzling Dan	64440-8	Pam Sly	Ray Dawson (3)	5	9-7 (87)		2/1	15/8
1 (3)	Lethal Lunch	0-51580	Michael Bell	Jamie Spencer	6	9-12 (92)	t	15/4 + 4/1	5/1
4 (4)	Campari	120770-	Julie Camacho	Tom Marquand	4	9-2 (82)		8/1	11/2

The betslip on the right shows a Reverse Forecast bet for Revolutionise and Dazzling Dan. The stake is set to 10, resulting in a total stake of £20.00. The potential returns are £0.00. The bet is confirmed before placing.

And remember, as a rule it is 1x 1 point for the Straight Forecast and 2x 0.5 points on the Reverse Forecast.

Then simply wait for the profit to roll in thanks to my rock-solid advice!
